

Changes in the Neighbourhood development processes that work

Changes in the Neighbourhood: development processes that work is a series of six booklets (total 90 pages) designed to assist organizations and communities struggling with development issues. Its focus is on redevelopment – changes that are proposed for existing neighbourhoods in our cities and towns.

Author Lorne Daniel is an award-winning writer, planner and communications consultant. In 2001, he received an Award for Planning Excellence from the Canadian Institute of Planners.
